REGULATIONS OF STATE BOARD OF ACCOUNTANCY

Application for certificate as Certified Public Accountant under Sections 4 and 5 of an Act of the Kentucky Legislature, creating a State Board of Accountancy, must be made on the form prescribed by the Board, written with ink, in the handwriting of the applicant, and signed and sworn to by the applicant before a Notary Public.

This application must be in the hands of the State Board of Accountancy of Kentucky at least thirty days prior to date of examination. (Address inquiries and applications to the Treasurer of the Board, 412 Lincoln Bank Building, Louisville, Ky.)

This application must be accompanied by a certified check or money order for twenty-five dollars ($25.00) payable to the "State Board of Accountancy of Kentucky".

It shall be the duty of the applicant to familiarize himself with the provisions of the Act creating a State Board of Accountancy for Kentucky, before answering any questions in the application. A copy of said Act will be supplied with application blank by Secretary of the Board.

Each applicant will be examined in the subjects "Practical Accounting", "Theory of Accounts", "Auditing" and "Commercial Law" as affecting accountancy. Each applicant will be required to make a grade of not less than 75% in each subject before he will be granted a certificate. If any applicant fails to make the required grade in any one of the subjects, he may take the next examination in the subjects in which he failed, and if he passes, the Board will then issue to him a certificate.

Each applicant must file with his application for certificate five letters from persons to whom the applicant is well known, and each of them must certify as to the moral character of the applicant. At least two of said letters shall be from officers or directors of a bank.

No applicant shall submit for reference the name of any person who is related to him by blood or marriage.

Each applicant must file with his application for certificate his photograph, taken within two years next before the date of his application.

In the case of applicants who are not residents of the State of Kentucky, the application shall be submitted by the applicant to the State Board of Accountancy of the State, District or Territory of which he is a resident; with the request that the said Board transmit the application to the Kentucky Board, with an indorsement showing whether or not the applicant would be permitted to take the examination in that State, District or Territory.

Additional information will be called for in all cases where the Board of Accountancy is not satisfied as to the eligibility of the applicant.

Applicants for a certificate to be issued through reciprocity, shall present evidence satisfactory to this Board that they are bona fide residents of the State of Kentucky and/or have an established place of business for the practice of accountancy within the State of Kentucky, and shall also present to this Board a certificate from the State Board of Accountancy of the State upon which such reciprocal certificate shall be based that such applicant is the legal holder of a certificate from such State and is in good standing with the Board of Accountancy of such State.

The qualifications hereinabove enumerated shall be construed merely as a furtherance of all other qualifications expressly provided by law.

RECIPROCITY

The Kentucky Board has no specific reciprocal relations with Boards of any other States. In recent years, certificates have been issued without examination to a number of accountants resident in Kentucky and/or actually practicing in Kentucky who were holders of C. P. A. certificates from other States. In each case of this kind, investigation has been made and the Board has satisfied itself as to the qualifications of the applicant.

WHAT IS A CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT?

A statement issued by the Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants in pamphlet form.

A certified public accountant is one who has met the requirements of the particular state from which he received his certificate with respect to his character, training and experience. For the purpose of keeping himself up to date on current evolution and development in matters of accountancy, he usually finds it desirable to be a member of his local State Society of Certified Public Accountants and also of the American Institute of Accountants.

He offers his services to the public as one schooled in the interpretation of business transactions from a sound accounting viewpoint and one whose judgment with respect to the affairs of a particular company is not prejudicial by reason of financial or any other interest therein. In dealing with accounting matters relating to business transactions he is trained to be accurate, orderly, and systematic, and to analyze facts and figures.

Because of this he is frequently called to collaborate with business men in the making of plans and carrying them through and to advise and assist in matters of organization, reorganization and merging of businesses and corporations. He aims to help industry to conform to governmental regulations. He should be thoroughly familiar with Federal and state tax laws, social security legislation, wage and hour bills, method of accounting, and ways and means of reducing costs. He is alert in the discovery of discrepancies, intentional and otherwise, thus removing temptation from cashiers and other employees who handle money.

In the performance of his duties as auditor the certified public accountant represents himself as one who is proficient in accounting practice and auditing procedure. The function of the certified public accountant is to examine a concern's accounting records and supporting data, in certain matters to obtain outside confirmations, and to require and consider supplementary explanations and information from the management and employees, to the extent necessary to enable him to form an opinion as to whether or not the financial statements as submitted present fairly the position and results of periodic operations.

Generally speaking, his function is limited to reporting upon situations, arising out of business transactions that have taken place in the past. In no sense is he an insurer or guarantor. In offering his opinion, the certified public accountant assumes heavy responsibilities. He must be skilled in his professional work and must have made a reasonable examination of the accounts in order to warrant his expression of an opinion. He must state his opinion clearly and unequivocally.

Management itself has the direct responsibility for the maintenance of an adequate and effective system of accounts, for the proper recording of transactions in the books of account and for the safeguarding of the assets of a concern. It is also charged with the primary responsibility to stockholders and to creditors for the substantial accuracy and adequacy of statements of position and operations.

In order to qualify himself to carry out his function the certified public accountant has completed a rigorous course of professional study and training as a background to the essential practical experience he must obtain, for it is only by study, training, and practical experience that he acquires skill in accounting and related matters.

In the ordinary course of his day-to-day practice he encounters a wide range of judgment on the part of management, varying from true objective judgment to the occasional extreme of deliberate misstatement. He is retained to examine and report upon the affairs of a concern because, through his training and experience, he has become not only skilled in accounting and auditing but has acquired the ability and habit of considering dispassionately and independently the facts recorded in books of account or otherwise disclosed by his examination and because, as a result, his opinion provides reasonable assurance that a fair and adequate presentation of pertinent information has been made in the financial statements.

The certified public accountant must also exercise his best judgment in determining the scope of his examination and in deciding whether the interests of stockholders and creditors justify the time and expense involved in the extension of any particular line of inquiry. Experience shows that, with few exceptions, the personnel of business organizations is honest. The discovery of defalcations has not been a primary objective of an examination incident to the issuance of financial statements accompanied by a report and opinion of a certified public accountant, although such discovery has frequently resulted. In a well organized concern the principal reliance for the detection of such irregularities is placed upon the maintenance of an adequate system of accounting records with appropriate internal check and control.

It is the duty of the certified public accountant to satisfy himself that the system of internal check and control is adequate and sufficiently effective to justify reliance thereon. To exhaust the possibility of exposure of all cases of dishonesty or fraud, he would have to examine in detail all transactions. This would entail a prohibitive cost to the great majority of business enterprises—a cost which would pass all bounds of reasonable expectation of benefit or safeguard therefrom, and place an undue burden on industry.

In carrying out his work the certified public accountant must always be on his guard against collusive fraud and be alert in detecting any sign of such collusion. However, on the basis of his examination by tests and checks, he relies upon the integrity of the client's organization unless circumstances are such as to arouse suspicion, in which case he must extend his procedures to determine whether or not such suspicions are justified.

The certified public accountant should not express the opinion that financial statements present fairly the position of the company and the results of its operations, and that they conform to generally accepted accounting principles, when his exceptions are such as to negative the opinion, or when the examination has been less in scope than he considers necessary. In such circumstances, the certified public accountant should limit his report to a statement of his findings and if appropriate his reasons for omitting an expression of opinion.

No certified public accountant should accept an audit engagement so restricted in scope as to make his report and opinion valueless; in other words, an audit engagement where he has not done sufficient work to justify him in forming an opinion. The responsibility as to what constitutes a proper examination rests largely with the individual certified public accountant and has to be decided in each case. As in other professions, the soundness of a decision depends on the character, ability, and experience of the person or persons making such decisions.

In considering financial statements prepared by certified public accountants it should be borne in mind that they are not capable of absolute exactness but rather represent the application of judgment, accounting principles, and convention to certain economic facts and transactions.
